

The government and stakeholders need to urgently look at ways of accommodating more part-time working in secondary schools

534,000

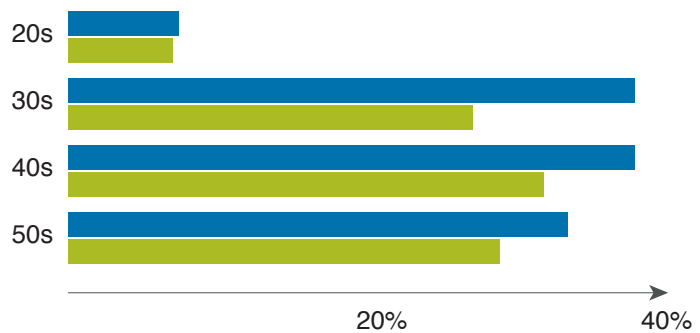

Pupil numbers in the secondary sector are projected to increase sharply in next 10 years

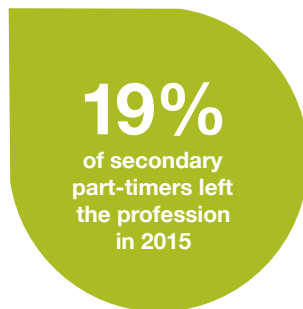

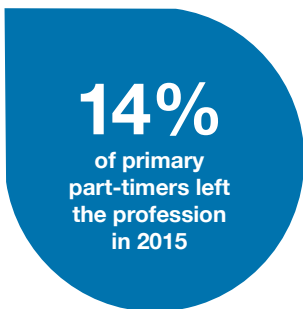

Part-time teachers are far more prevalent in the primary sector than in the secondary sector

Proportion of part-time teachers (%)

Greater flexibility over working patterns may incentivise teachers to stay in, or return to, the profession

Teacher retention research: part-time working

Read the full report: nfer.ac.uk/NUFS

Evidence for Excellence in Education

